STEEL SUIT ON AGAIN

Corporation Begins Its Defense in Disposition Proceedings.

United Press Telegram.
NEW YORK, May 12.—Steelworkers in the Government suit against the United States Steel Corporation were re-examined this morning, when the defendants began presenting evidence. The Government finished its side of the case in January, but it is possible that the presenters may offer more testimony. It is expected that the company will occupy one year in the presentation of testimony.

President James A. Farrell of the Steel company was the first witness to take the stand this morning. It is expected that his examination will occupy several days. In his questioning of President Farrell, former Judge J. M. Dickinson for the Government experts to clear up the alleged variation in steel rails which for 12 years has kept the price stationary at $24 a ton. When he took the stand, Farrell called attention to the fact that freight rates on steel rails between Pittsburgh and New York, while the rates on ten out of the great lakes have decreased, it also said that the freight rates on coal and coke in Pittsburgh have increased. The steel company, he said, uses 10,000 tons of coke a day.

The company's exports totaled 1,230,000 tons valued at $61,000,000 in 1911 as compared with 2,537,000 tons at $22,000,000 in 1912. Steel shipments during the last year, he said, increased in value more than in tonnage.

HORSE IS MISSING.

Jimtown Stable Horse Falls to Find the Animal Here.

Lewis Ansell, who cares for the horses of the H. C. Pelt Coke Company on the Jimtown farm, drove into town last night looking for one of the company's black horses which he claimed had been taken from the farm by Harry Shanker.

Ansell reported to Chief of Police George Tetzl that Shanker saddled the animal shortly after noon and rode to Conneltsville. Inquiries at theivery stables here indicated that Shanker had not visited there. Later it was learned that a youth riding a black horse had tied the animal in a down town alley. A search failed to locate the horse.

HER HOME WRECKED.

Mrs. Duncan Was at Dawson When Magazine Blew Up.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Duncan at Triangle No. 1 was totally destroyed by Saturday's explosion. Mrs. Duncan left in the morning for Dawson to visit at the home of her father, Eli Huston, and about an hour after her arrival at Dawson the explosion occurred, burning in the city.

Mr. Duncan, who is assistant superintendent at the Francis plant, was in the house when the accident occurred.

Woman's Image Perished.
It is said to be from 15 to 20. What would be a most natural change in a woman's life, is on account of modern methods of living, fraught with most annoying and painful ailments. Women who pass through this critical period should try upon Lydia's Pinkettes vegetable compound, as it has proved wonderfully successful in carrying women safely through the change of life.—Adv.

Mrs. Dove is Dead.
Mrs. Isabella Dove, 60 years old, died yesterday at her home near Lakeland No. 1. Funeral Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock from the family residence, 1015 E. Grove street, to the Grove cemetery. She is survived by her husband, William Dove and the following children: Mrs. C. A. Kennedy, Walter Bentley, and Harry Dove. Mrs. A. B. Corbin, Gertrude Arnold, Georgia Myrtle Dove. Four grandchildren also survive.

OBSERVE MOTHERS DAY

Special Services are Held in Nearly All the Churches.

Mother's Day was observed yesterday in nearly all the Conneltsville churches and the memory flower, the white carnation, was worn by many. Father's Day will be observed on the third Sunday in June. The red rose will be worn if the father is living and the white rose if dead.

About 500 persons attended services last evening in the Colonial Theatre by the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church. A sermon on "The Ideal Mother" was delivered by Rev. J. L. Proudfit. Excellent music was rendered by the choir, assisted by the church orchestra. There were no services yesterday morning on account of the theatre being too cold.

Rev. J. P. Allison of the Christian Church preached on "Hannah, An Old-Fashioned Mother" in the morning and in the evening his subject was "Mother's Influence." A mother's memorial song service was rendered by the choir.

Yesterday morning Reverend Bell pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Vanderbilt, had as his subject "Mother's Day," and in the evening his subject was "A Patron to Mothers."

Appropriate services were held at the Cochran Memorial Church at Dawson yesterday morning, in charge of the pastor Rev. H. A. Baum. In the evening Reverend Baum preached at the Methodist Church at Adelphi. Special services were held at the Presbyterian Church at Dawson Reverend Hubert of Pittsburgh occupied the pulpit.

Special services were held at the Methodist Protestant Church at Dunbar by the pastor Rev. T. M. Gladden. There were two large congregations and appropriate sermons were delivered. The custom of distributing carnations among the congregation was not generally carried out yesterday.

BRONCHITIS SUFFERER

Takes Druggist's Advice With Splendid Result.

If anyone should know the worth of a medicine, it is the retail druggist who sells it over his counter every day in the week, and is in a position to know what remedy gives the best satisfaction.

Mrs. Frank H. Ulline of West End Lake, N. Y., says: "For a number of years I was a great sufferer from bronchitis. Last July I had an attack which was more severe than any and my friends thought I could not recover from it. Then I was advised by my druggist to try Vinol, which I did with wonderful results. My cough has left me; I have gained in weight and appetite and I am as strong as ever. I advise all who have bronchitis, chronic coughs, or who are run-down to try Vinol."

It is the combined action of the medicinal curative elements of the cod liver oil, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron that makes Vinol so efficient in such cases.

Remember, we guarantee Vinol to do just what we say—we pay back your money if it does not cure your cough, cold, or bronchitis. Vinol is sold in West End by Fred H. Harmerline.

P. S. Stop scratching, our Saxon Salve stops itching. We guarantee it.—Advertisement

THAT MISSING WORD

This Week It Begins With "G" and Ends With "L."

The missing word this week begins with "G" and ends with "L." It will take careful searching to locate it because it is carefully hidden.

Last week this missing word was "collected," taken from the advertisement of J. H. Doyle between the words "Spaulding's" and "Goodie." It has been replaced and those who sought may see where the operation was performed.

The answers continue to pour into this office, showing that interest is being maintained. As the contest will come to an end within the next few weeks, extreme care should be taken in preparing replies by those who hope to win one of the several prizes.

COFFE IS REMEDY

Words have been bandied to and fro on this matter and demerits of coffee as a healthy drink. During the last quarter of a century many learned professors have investigated the subject. At Columbia University, New York City, exhaustive experiments have shown, beyond a shadow of doubt, that good coffee is not harmful. On the contrary, we are told that for relieving fatigue, without subsequent depression, coffee is excellent. "BREAKFAST CHEER" coffee is a high-grade brand and can be relied upon for purity and all-round excellence. "BREAKFAST CHEER" coffee produces a wholesome beverage delightful in taste and aroma, and excellent in its refreshing and stimulating effect. Order it from your dealer today.—Adv.

A Lost Bank Check.

When a bank check is lost, it does not mean that the money is lost. If the check is drawn in favor of a definite individual or business house, it must be indorsed before it will be paid at the bank. Payment should always be stopped on any check that has been mislaid or lost, that is, security against having it paid on a forged indorsement. A check is the safest form for making remittances in payment of personal, household or business expenses. The Citizens National Bank, 138 Pittsburg street, welcomes deposits subject to check.—Adv.

ANNUAL BANQUET OF THE FIREMEN AT SCOTSDALE

It was Also Occasion of Formal Opening of Central Hotel.

THREE HEAVY FREEZES DESTROY

Great Damage Done Vegetables and Fruit During Past Few Nights; Sunday Was a Very Much Colder Day in Town; Other News Notes.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, May 12.—The annual banquet of the Scottish Volunteer Firemen, held at the Central Hotel, on Saturday evening was the handsomest event of this kind ever given in town, and was also the feature of a housewarming for the hotel since its proprietor, Mr. Kelly, has formally opened up since making extensive additions and improvements, and redecorating the entire interior. The housewarming was very beautiful in its decorations and the arrangements of the tables. A surprising menu was served, and following there were speeches, Hon. W. M. Porter, a veteran fire fighter, being the toastmaster. A number of the Westmoreland County officials were present.

HEAVY FROSTS.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights were marked by heavy frosts that accomplished more damage than has been suffered in this section for years. Each frost seemed to grow heavier and what damage the first ones failed to accomplish the latter ones did. Edward Workman, the market gardener at Hawkeye, says that he had a number of cold frames in use and on Friday evening put burlap over them, but found the next morning that a lot of the plants had been killed. He took a lot of hay and covered the frames with it, and intended to leave the covering on until all danger was past. The tomato plants were frozen, grapes were taken, and nearly every kind of fruit suffered severely.

HELD BANQUET.

The two sides chosen out of the Christian Endeavor of the United Brethren Church held a banquet and entertainment on Friday evening, the side captained by John Cope winning over the one captained by Miss Iva Holgate. About 70 were present and a very enjoyable time was had.

ORCHARD WORK.

Professor J. S. Briggs of the State Department of Agriculture, will be in this section as the representative of Prof. H. A. PLAN BOOSTERS' DAY.

Insetto City Business Men Will Celebrate This Month.

Favette City, the hustling little city on the Monongahela river, will be a lively place on May 21 and 22. The business men through their association have arranged for two days called "Booster Days" on which they propose to make special prices in their goods in order to encourage their old customers and at the same time create new ones.

Two prizes will be given, the value of each being $10, one to out-of-town customers and one to home people. These prizes will appeal most doubly to the women folks and there is going to be some great hustling for the coveted articles.

Ten Hearty Laughs a Minute.

When those wild bucking bronches with Wyoming Bill's Wild West Exhibition break loose there is more real hearty laughter to the square inch than can be found in a score of circuses. They perform indescribable stunts and turns in their frantic endeavors to throw their riders, but the husky cowboy invariably remains seated, much to the displeasure of the crowd. The fun is of the button-busting variety. A score of these bucking bronches are carried with this show and they create untold merriment by their action. The show appears here next Friday. The show appears here next Friday.

"GO IN DEBT" if you want to get rich.

There is no incentive to save equaling the compulsion to save that follows a prudently-made debt.

"Don't go in debt on general expenses—that will foster ruin. Don't buy a suit unless you can pay for it—or an automobile or anything of costly upkeep."

"But buy a house—prudently; or a farm—with more deliberation, or a piano, or some real property. And you'll save—and soon own it."

"Our records show hundreds of piano owners who never could have owned an instrument on a cash basis, and all the vast experience of selling pianos we have known of no subsequent hardship, nor have we been asked for relief from the bargain, except in two or three cases. Family bereavement—the loss of the breadwinner—has, in a few cases, changed plans. And we have helped to make the change easy."

Go in debt and get one of our high grade pianos.

The tone of his voice made Gloria feel that he would make good his threat. Here in the center of the room in full view by the man whom they were seeking. Once they burst the single barrier they would be upon him, to do what further harm she knew not. It might be that he was now already beyond all human aid. He still breathed, however, and Gloria was willing to fight if there was even a chance in his favor. Hence it would not do for them to find him the minute they broke down the door. She must hide him somewhere to give her time to parley with his assailants. She looked vainly about for some place to put him.

"For God's sake, help me hide him," she beseeched. "I can't give him up. Where does that door lead to?" She pointed to the door close by the one which led into the hall.

"That's only a closet under the stairway," said Little Ella, who had been in the room with her. "They'd find him there in a minute."

"You wouldn't let them kill him, would you?"

"I can't help you, I'm so weak I can hardly turn over in bed!"

"Open this door, I say," came from the man without as he pounded on the door unavailingly, "or I'll crack you over the head."

Gloria understood that there was no time to temporize. She must do something and that quickly. Close by where she stood next the bed, and on the side away from the door, was Little Ella's trunk. Behind it on hooks hung a number of garments, and on a chair were more clothes. It was the only chance and Gloria took it.

How she ever managed to get him, a dead weight, across the intervening space and safely stowed behind the trunk she never knew. She dragged the trunk, she pulled, she rolled and she forced the door open. She would save him, yet gasp for breath. As she snatched skirts from the hooks and all the clothing from the chair to pile upon him, the pounding upon the door became more and more vindictive. The girl was out of breath, but as she bent over the prostrate form of the man she loved, she managed to gasp:

"Joe, listen to me. If you can hear me, dear, listen. Don't stir, don't you hear me, Joe?" But he was dead to all entreaties. Hearing this was so, she turned to Little Ella: "Get him to go away. Offer him anything, promise him anything. I'll do it; only keep that man on the other side of that door."

"There's at least two of 'em," said Little Ella, who had been in the room with her. "That doesn't matter—thousand—it's all the same. Get them to go away."

"This was easier said than done, but Little Ella was willing to make the effort."

"You get away from that door, and leave me alone."

"Open this door, you devil," threatened the besieger, "or I'll—"

And then interrupted another voice with a suggestion that made Gloria grow faint.

"Aw! Let's bust it in. He's in there all right!"

"Let 'er go," answered the first one.

Then came the heavy thuds as the men threw themselves against the door. The knocking at the gate in "Macbeth" had no more portentous sound in the play than had this attack upon her stronghold to Gloria. She felt all the nervousness of troops under fire that must remain inactive awaiting orders. There was nothing she could do but wait until the door was battered down.

This was not long in happening. As she stood in front of the trunk nervously twisting her handkerchief in her hands, at one last mighty effort the bolt yielded, the door flew open and two men stumbled into the room. Little Ella recognized them both instantly. They were Buck Kelly and Turkey Ryan, notorious denizens of the underworld. If ever there were two vicious-looking outcasts, these men answered their description. To make their repulsive appearance worse, they bore the marks of their recent encounter. Kelly's left eye had swelled almost closed, and Ryan had a long cut across his cheek where Wright's ring had left its mark with a slashing blow. He had done even more damage than this, but these showed the plainest. Needless to say, their tempers had not been sweetened by the episode.

"Now, damn you—" Ryan began savagely.

"Stop!" Gloria commanded. "What are you doing here?"

Until she spoke they had not seen her, and both men were taken much aback. To find a lady there was something they had not expected.

"What the—" Ryan gasped, but checked himself and then continued in a slightly more respectful tone: "begs yer pardon, miss, but what are you doin' here?"

"That's none of your business. You clear out, both of you."

This encouraged Little Ella to take her part in the discussion, which she did with her most strident tones.

"What do you mean, buttin' in here? Bent it, you two. I'm a lady, and when I have a lady friend visitin', me they ain't no place for bums. On yer way."

It was not this tirade which had the most effect upon them. Both quailed before Gloria, who stood eying them sternly. Then they looked at each other, and without a word of apology shuffled out into the hall.

CHAPTER XX.

If Gloria believed that she had put to flight for all time such gentlemanly neuters as Mr. Kelly and Mr. Ryan, her feeling of triumph did not last long. As the door into the hall was still open she did not dare make a move in Wright's direction. She determined to close the door and pull the washstand in front of it, wedging it under the knob, before trying further to succor the injured man. When she walked toward the door, it again framed the forms of Ryan and Kelly. As a result of a short conference just out of earshot, they had decided to return and get their man.

"What do you want?" Her heart sank.

"We're lookin' fer a man," Kelly started.

"And he come into this room, too," Ryan added doggedly. "We don't want to make you uncomfortable, lady, but we gotta git that man."

The way he said it made Gloria feel that he meant business. All she could do was play for time and pray for Mrs. Hayes's return.

"There's no man here," she explained in her most winning manner. "You can see that plainly for yourself. I came over from the mission to take care of this sick woman. You are only making her worse by bursting into her room in such a rude fashion. Please go out gently, she must have it perfectly quiet."

Turkey Ryan so far forgot himself in the presence of his betters as to grin at this explanation.

"We don't want to have to make you give 'im up."

This threat had an unpleasant sound. Hitherto the girl had not feared for her own safety, but his surly remark frightened her. The one thing that kept her steadfast was the thought that she was protecting the man she had loved; yes, the man she now loved more than she ever had. She did not know how he happened to be there, she did not know how he regarded her; she only knew that she loved him, that she would give her life a sacrifice to save him.

Ryan next appealed to Little Ella. "Ella, that guy come in here. Where is he? We ain't goin' to be scared by no fool girl. She don't know who wants him. Now give 'im up."

"Don't say a word," Gloria told her. "You gotta stick by us, Ella. This ain't no ordinary job."

At Ryan's injunction to stick by him, Little Ella seemed to waver.

"Low, you fergit who yer friends are. Who keeps you from bein' jugged? Mike Noonan. Who lets you stay here when you can't pay, an' feeds you? Mike Noonan." "That's so. He has been good to me."

Gloria was quick to catch the note of indecision. "But now I'm going to take care of you."

"Yes, goin' to, goin' to," sneered Kelly. "You know what church people is. Don't you fergit we gotta stan' together down here, all of us."

It was the old, old appeal of class to serve a selfish end.

"Yes, that's true. I don't want to say anything, but—"

Ryan immediately pressed the advantage he thought he had gained.

"This is yer chance, Ella. You know what she'd say to you if you was in her house. Are you with us? I'll see you git yours."

It was a moment when a man's life was at stake. Gloria believed that if the woman told and they tore Wright from her she might never see him alive again. She had prayed silently for help to come, but she was still alone. Already she was giving up hope from that quarter and was conscious that upon her own efforts in all probability the very life of the man she loved would depend. To add to her anguish was the fear that he might regain consciousness and betray himself by a moan.

Now it all depended upon Little Ella. It had been a clever stroke, that of Ryan's, making her how she would be treated in this woman's home. Against this appeal to class prejudice Gloria had not scored.

"I'll tell," said the woman.

The two men looked at each other and smiled.

"Stop!" cried Gloria, looking not at the men, but at the girl who lay pale and trembling upon the bed. "Do you remember what you said a while ago? What you accused me of? You swore that I hadn't loved even to my sorrow you shall have proof of it now that I do. The very man whom I'm defending from these bullies is the one man on earth I love." Ryan and Kelly looked at each other in amazement. "You shall see if you loved more than I. You're gone through fire and storm for a man? I'll do no less if need be, I'll die for this man—here and now—because I love him." The first died out of her eyes. She stretched out her hands to Ella pathetically and begged humbly, "My whole heart's happiness is here. Are you going to help them try to take him from me?"

The woman, a creature of impulse, was moved.

"You'd better give it up, Turkey. I ain't goin' to let you touch that man."

"Ah, you're a woman," sighed Gloria. "You know a woman's heart."

"Mix on that love spiel, Ella," commanded Ryan. "The first died out of her eyes. She stretched out her hands to Ella pathetically and begged humbly, 'My whole heart's happiness is here. Are you going to help them try to take him from me?'"

The woman, a creature of impulse, was moved.

"You'd better give it up, Turkey. I ain't goin' to let you touch that man."

The BACK-YARD FARMER

BY PROF. JOHN WILLARD BOLLE

Dwarf Tomatoes.

Tomatoes are one of if not the most popular summer vegetables. This world-wide favorite is of comparatively recent use as an edible.

The popularity of tomatoes is due largely to the great variety of ways in which they can be prepared for the table. No other vegetable can be eaten raw or cooked in such a variety of forms. No other vegetable has wider range of growth, is easier to grow, or produces more from the land.

Tomatoes were originally divided into the tree and bush classes, after their manner of growth. About 50 years ago a French market gardener noticed a sturdy low-growing tomato bush in a field of ordinary vines. We say bush advisedly, because it had a short, strong stalk and stood right up holding its branches and fruit off the ground.

From his original plant "sport" has been developed a great variety of dwarf tomatoes. This peculiar occurrence has never occurred, and if this humble gardener had not preserved his remarkable plant, the world would be without a race of commercial tomatoes that bids fair to put the larger sorts out of business, so far as the large grower is concerned. We have long been familiar with tomatoes which are dwarf as to the size of the fruit and they need not be considered dwarf seriously.

The new dwarf has full-sized fruit of the very best quality, and while each plant bears fewer tomatoes, the dwarf will produce a great many more tomatoes from a given area than will the larger bushes because it spreads less and may be planted closer together. Where the large varieties will go about 2,700 to the acre, planted four feet apart, and will yield about 450 bushels of good fruit, the Giant Dwarf may be planted 2½ by 3½ feet apart, nearly 5,000 plants to the acre, and has frequently yielded 600 bushels.

Even if this were to be overlooked entirely, the fact that the dwarf tomato plant does not have to be tied or staked up, makes it much better for both the small garden and the market garden. The fruit is naturally kept off the ground and ripens without rotting in the attempt. Handle them just as you have handled the large varieties and plant them closer together and forget about the stakes. An excellent forcing plan is to sink a bottomless tin can in the ground by each plant and pour liquid fertilizer, or even plain water, into it twice weekly.

The two men looked at each other in astonishment, and Little Ella sat bolt upright in bed.

"The boss—"

"Daughter," Gloria finished Ryan's exclamation. "I am the daughter of David Kerr. Now go."

Something in her bearing made them feel that she was telling the truth. Kelly, timid now and apologetic, was the first to speak.

"Well, we didn't know you was—why didn't you say—"

"I guess we'll go see Noonan," was Ryan's method of beating a retreat.

"He can't get away, anyway," Kelly whispered to him.

Gloria breathed a sigh of relief as they turned to go, but in an instant the shrill scream from Ella which brought the men back to the center of the room froze her blood.

"The boss' daughter!" It was a wail's scream ending in a peal of unearthly laughter.

Gloria sank into a chair gasping, "What have I said?"

She felt the curse upon her. "Come back, Turkey, come back," shrieked Little Ella, laughing wildly. "The boss' daughter! The boss' daughter!"

Her thin hands plucked at the coverlid, and her blazing eyes were fixed upon Gloria, who had shrunk into a weak lump in her chair. Only a few moments had passed since all had admitted that Little Ella dominated the situation. That fact she recognized as readily as did the others. Now she determined to make use of her power. Gloria herself had aroused the savagery of the woman by having inflamed her against the boss, not knowing that the creature's rage was directed against her own father. Feverishly stimulated to an uncustomed mental acuteness by the
